Anthology Ally Services:

Deployment and Adoption Planning

For academic institutions, ensuring that their courses are accessible to all students has become both a legal and a moral imperative. Because of this, institutions are increasingly designing online content in their learning management system (LMS) with inclusivity in mind. The process of creating and sustaining courses that support the varying learning preferences, abilities, and devices that students use to learn can be challenging. In addition, institutions must meet the expectations established in accessibility laws and regulations. To assist institutions in making the most of their Anthology Ally accessibility implementation, Anthology has created the Ally Deployment and Adoption Planning (ADAP) service.

Using Ally to strengthen a culture of inclusivity and make digital content more accessible

The Ally Deployment and Adoption Planning (ADAP) service delivers multiple sessions with Anthology's accessibility strategists in support of the deployment of Ally. These sessions cover such topics as:

- Initial discovery and analysis with campus team
- Planning workshops with key campus stakeholders
- Deployment and adoption plan creation
- Supplemental accessibility resources and materials
- Deployment support for the first three to six months of use

Who should attend?
Accessibility specialists and coordinators, instructional leaders, course designers, content creators, administrators, and other personnel who wish to solidify the use of Ally at the institution.

As a result of the Ally Deployment and Adoption Planning (ADAP) service, Anthology provides recommendations and action items for:

- ☑ Connecting Ally to institutional initiatives and priorities
- ☑ Creating ongoing content remediation strategies and identifying stakeholder roles and responsibilities
- ☑ Strategizing training and staff development efforts related to accessible content
- ☑ Learning how to prioritize remediation efforts
- ☑ Leveraging data from the Institutional Report to guide next steps
- ☑ Communicating to staff and leadership regarding expectations and progress
